Larry Allen has been involved in the exhibition side of motion pictures since January 1963. He served as President and CEO of Allen Theatres, from 1975 to 2016. His college career was cut short after his father passed when he was 19. Allen Theatres was established by his grandfather in 1912 and consisted of two drive-in screens and two indoor theater screens when his father passed. Larry, with his brother, Lane, built an additional theater complex in Farmington and then expanded the business to Las Cruces in 1982. Allen Theatres, Inc. now encompasses a total of 121 screens in eighteen locations across New Mexico and Colorado. According to Boxoffice Magazine, is now the 39th largest theatre chain in North America.

Larry’s business ventures are not all within the movie industry. He has owned other businesses such as TV stations, radio stations, restaurants, a background music company, polling companies, motels and oil rigs.

While in Farmington, Mr. Allen was an active member of the Boys and Girls club where he served one term as president, Rotary, National Association of Theatre Managers, and a member of a bank Board of Directors and member of the National Association Theatre Owners. Larry was awarded Business Leader of the Year by the Business Leaders Development Society, Colonel Aide-de-Camp from Lieutenant Governor Walter Bradley, NMSU Honorary Member of the Golden Key International Honor Society and serves as a member of the Aggie Athletic Club. In 2017 Allen Theatres was selected as the Outstanding Business in Philanthropy by the Association of Fundraising Processionals New Mexico chapter. Larry received an Honorary Degree from Dona Ana Community College in 2012. Larry and his wife, Diane, have 3 children and several grandchildren. They reside in Las Cruces.

Mr. John M. Cordova
Group Director, Sports Management

John Cordova has spent more than thirty-four years in the sports business industry, beginning in the early 1980’s when sports marketing burst onto the scene as the newest trend in breakthrough brand marketing strategy. As a result of a wide variety of sports roles within league, team and sponsor organizations, John has been fortunate to construct one of the more diverse resumes in the business.

Originally employed at Texas Instruments (Lubbock, TX), in its fledgling home computer division, John began his sports business career as a member of the Executive Development Program at the Major League Baseball Commissioners Office (New York) in 1983-84. At the Commissioner’s Office he was given the opportunity to experience and excel in many aspects of the “business” of sports ranging from public relations, player records, minor league operations, licensing, corporate sponsorship and television production.

At the conclusion of the 1984 MLB season John joined the Miller Brewing Company (Milwaukee, WI) as Coordinator, Sports Marketing. As a part of the Miller Sports Marketing team John managed Miller’s sports marketing efforts with Major League Baseball, the United States Football League and the Major Indoor Soccer League. After a successful stint managing those properties, John was promoted to Manager, Pro Sports Marketing where he directed all of Miller’s pro sports marketing efforts against the NFL, NBA, NHL, MLB, PBA Tour and Olympics.

In 1988, John was recruited by former Major League Baseball Commissioner, Bud Selig, to join the Milwaukee Brewers Baseball Club with a vision to “redesign” the club’s marketing efforts in preparation for new Miller Park. John joined the club as a Director, ultimately earning the title of Vice President, Marketing. During his tenure with the Brewers, the club embarked on many new marketing initiatives which included the preliminary planning on Miller Park, as well as the pioneering of the first home plate signage concept in MLB.

Since 1994 John has been an integral part of The Coca-Cola Company’s (Atlanta, GA) domestic pro sports marketing efforts. Serving in various roles ranging from Director, Sports Marketing to his current role as Group Director, Sports Management; John has been a key player in the reinvention and continued development of Coca-Cola’s strategic approach to sports business partnerships.

A native of Denver, Colorado, John graduated from New Mexico State University (Las Cruces, NM) with a BA in Business Management (1981) and an MBA (1983).

John earned a football scholarship to NMSU, played for the Aggies from 1976-79 and was an All-Missouri Valley Conference selection and team captain in his senior year. After his playing career he served as NMSU’s assistant offensive line/strength coach during the 1980 and 1981 football seasons.

In 2006, John was inducted into the New Mexico State University College of Business Hall of Fame. He currently serves on the NMSU Foundation Board, and also served on the board of New Mexico State Sports Enterprises, Inc.
MaryLou Davis worked for 15 years in a private school in Phoenix as both a teacher and an administrator. In 1990, she began teaching in an inner city school as lead teacher for staff, and a mentor for student teachers. She was eventually awarded Master Teacher status by the district. In 2000, she moved to Phoenix College and worked there until her retirement.

She remains a strong advocate for children and children’s issues. Along with serving on the NMSU Foundation Board as Chair, she is a Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA), for children in the foster system. She was one of the founders and board members of Foster Angels Serving Together. She served on the Camp Fire Boys and Girls Club Board and is currently Past Chair of the board for Gompers Habilitation. She has also served on the board of the Arizona Foundation for Women. Ed Foreman grew up on a sweet potato and peanut farm in Portales, graduated high school in Portales and spent his first two years in college at ENMU, studying pre-engineering, played on the Greyhound football team under the coaching and tutelage of Dr. Floyd Golden, Al Garten, Country Richardson, Dewey Langston, et al.

He then transferred to New Mexico State University where he graduated as a civil engineer and was employed by Phillips Petroleum Company in the Permian Basin oilfields of West Texas as a petroleum engineer. He developed a unique technique for drilling wells safer, faster and more efficiently than the methods being used at that time, became financially independent, was elected to the U. S. Congress, first from Texas, then from New Mexico, becoming the only person to be elected to the U. S. Congress from two different states in over 150 years! He has enjoyed a close working relationship with six U. S. Presidents and has served in both the U. S. Navy and the U. S. Air Force.

Ed holds an Honorary Doctorate of Letters Degree from New Mexico State University and is a member of the CPAE Speakers Hall of Fame. He is a motorcycle, sports car and hot air balloon enthusiast, an outdoor adventurer, and an international traveler.

He is a board member, officer, or major stockholder of a dozen successful corporations in real estate, construction, restaurants, transportation and petroleum development. Worldwide, there are now more than 30,000 graduates of his renowned, life-enhancing SUCCESSUL LIFE Course.

Ed and his wife, Barbara, met while both were students at NMSU, have been married 57 years, have two children, Preston Kirk, a business entrepreneur in Dallas, and Rebecca Lynn, an international language specialist and translator who maintains offices in Stockholm and Dallas; and a grandson, Justin, an automotive, computer and communications specialist in Dallas.
Harold Foreman was honored for his promotion and support of New Mexico State University as well as for his tireless efforts in the community and the business world with an Honorary Doctorate of Letters Degree on May 10, 2008.

Born and raised on a peanut and sweet potato farm in Portales, NM, Foreman graduated from NMSU in 1961 with a degree in Civil Engineering. He was selected as one of the top 100 alumni from the NMSU College of Engineering in 1988.

Foreman’s career began in construction and then real estate brokerage and management. Today he is President and Partner of Valley Leasing and Development, Inc., a property management and asset holding company.

He and his brother, Ed Foreman, have been great supporters and friends of NMSU Civil Engineering for many years. They are both members of the NMSU Civil Engineering Academy, an honorary group that provides advice and direction for the department. In 2005 Foreman and his brother made a $1.5 million gift to the College of Engineering, which established two professorships and one endowed chair in Civil Engineering. This gift, along with their annual contributions to NMSU, helps recruit and retain highly qualified faculty members and students.

Foreman served as President of the NM Ready-mix Association in the late 1970’s while co-owning and managing a large ready-mix concrete, sand and gravel company in Las Cruces. After receiving his general contractor’s license and his real estate brokers license, he built and managed apartments in southern New Mexico.

In 1984 Foreman was elected to represent Dona Ana County in the NM State Senate. He served 8 years while actively participating on the Legislative Finance and Education committees. He retired from the senate in 1992. Foreman was later honored as the first recipient of the John Augustine Lifetime Republican Achievement Award.

Foreman is active in the Las Cruces community. He and his family attend University United Methodist Church; is active with the Rio Grande Rotary Club; was a member of the Elks Club; and also served as chairman of the board of directors of Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Las Cruces.

Foreman and his wife, Carol, are the parents of three children, Barbara, Laura and Brad, and all are graduates of NMSU. The Foreman’s also have numerous grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Randy Pugh’s 40 year career in the insurance brokerage business provided him an opportunity to travel the world while dealing with large multinational corporations. His clients included Chevron, ARCO, H&R Block, Microsoft, Conoco Phillips, and Occidental Petroleum. His career began in Washington, DC, and then took him to Hartford, Kansas City, Albuquerque, San Diego, London, Los Angeles, and, finally, Alaska and Seattle, where he served as CEO and President of Alaska USA Insurance. In 2005 he started an insurance brokerage agency that grew to become one of the largest independent agencies in the US. Although he is retired, Mr. Pugh still works as a consultant to insurance agencies.

Mr. Pugh graduated from NMSU in 1969, at which point he entered the US Navy as a pilot.

After his retirement, Mr. Pugh and his wife returned to New Mexico. They divide their time between Seattle and Santa Fe, and enjoy hunting, fishing and culinary visits to Europe.
Joseph Salopek graduated from the College of Agricultural, Consumer, and Environmental Sciences with a bachelor’s degree in Agricultural Economics and Agricultural Business in 2004. He is actively involved with the family’s pecan farming business, Salopek 6U Farms, Inc. A third generation pecan farmer, Joseph currently manages 6U along side his father, Ben, his Uncle James, as well as his 3 cousins, Dustin, Rett, and Chuy Salopek.

Aside from farming, Joseph also assists with the family cattle ranch located north of Deming. 6U has an active family foundation, The Salopek Foundation, that continues to support scholarships and several NMSU activities including the College of ACES and NMSU Athletics. 6U is active within pecan research projects at NMSU and awards several scholarships each year to students within Entomology, Plant Pathology and Weed Science.

Joseph’s wife, Bridget, also an NMUS Alum, currently runs her own personal fitness training business, as well as teaches group fitness classes through the City of Las Cruces.

Joseph and Bridget have a son and enjoy hunting, traveling, and attending NMSU sporting events and Green Bay Packer football games.
Frank Seidel, President and founder of Seidel Technologies, has over 35 years of experience working in the oil & gas industry. His introduction to working in the field began working summers as a roustabout engineer trainee for Amoco Production Co. in West Texas. After receiving his Bachelor’s of Science in Chemical Engineering from New Mexico State University in January 1982, Frank was offered a full-time engineering position with Amoco in Hobbs, NM.

Frank married his wife Jennifer, a NMSU alumna, in June 1982. They started their family in Hobbs, where they lived for five years. They have 3 daughters, Hailey (founder of Bowdog Canine Specialists, centered in Calgary, AB), and Caroline (BS: Kinesiology, NMSU 2010; Doctor of Chiropractic Medicine, University of Western States 2013, practices in Golden and Lakewood, CO) and Rosalind (BA: English Literature and Medieval Studies, Loyola University New Orleans 2016; MLIS: Archives and Digital Curation, University of Maryland 2018).

In 1987, Frank was transferred to Houston, TX where he worked in Amoco’s Western Region office. While in Houston, he worked as part of an engineering team that pioneered some of the first horizontal drilling in the Austin Chalk Field. In 1991, Frank was transferred to Denver, CO where he managed drilling operations in Oklahoma and New Mexico.

In 1994, Frank joined an independent operator, Burlington Resources, and was asked to work in their Farmington, NM office as the Drilling Engineering Team Leader, mentoring young engineers. As the team leader, Frank was nominated for New Mexico’s Business Development “1999 Entrepreneur of the Year” for his work in Oil & Gas Air Drilling Optimization. Still working for Burlington in 1999 when they purchased Poco Petroleum based in Calgary, Alberta, Canada, Frank was then named the Canadian Drilling Manager, becoming one of the company’s first expatriate employees in Canada. In 2005, when Burlington was purchased by Conoco Phillips, Frank joined the Canadian start-up Canetic Resources. In 2007, Canetic was sold to Penn West Resources. At this point, having spent nearly eight years in Canada, Frank and Jennifer decided to return to the U.S. Frank became Drilling Manager for El Paso E&P in Denver in December 2007. By 2008, Frank was promoted to Operations Manager for El Paso’s entire Western Region, achieving record production.

In 2009, El Paso announced closure of their Denver office and Frank was inspired to create Seidel Technologies, LLC, an oil & gas engineering consultation firm centered in Denver, CO. Frank and the team he built continued to develop and apply new drilling techniques to in order to improve efficiency. Seidel Technologies grew rapidly, achieving $15 million in revenue by 2015, with approximately sixty contract employees. To date, Seidel Tech. has helped its clients achieve over $30 billion in realized value.

Frank has continued to support NMSU by serving NMSU’s Foundation Board and the NMSU Department of Chemical Engineering Advisory Board. Frank and Jennifer have provided funding for “Entrepreneur Encounters” at Arrowhead Center, the Frank Seidel Scholarship for Chemical Engineering Students and the Seidel Brew Lab in the Chemical Engineering Department. Frank looks forward to the work he can do with and for the university into the future.
